morrow.

Q Why did you bring a lawyer with you, did you think you had done anything wrong?

A Because I consulted a lawyer about it.

Q Did you think you had done anything wrong?

A No, sir, absolutely not.

Q Why did you bring a lawyer to the police with these papers?

A Because I consulted him about the case in the first place?

Q Well, you knew you had no business with these papers.

A Maybe I did, maybe I didn't.

Q You knew these were state papers?

A I didn't know anything about it.

Q Did you ever hear of the Halls-Mills murder?

A That might be.

Q Did you know a week ago that you had these statements?

A That might be.

Q What suddenly jumped in your mind to make you produce these statements?

A It suddenly came that I ought to do it.

Q What lawyer did you bring? Your sister was examined by the State Police yesterday about these papers and said she knew nothing about them?

A She didn't tell me anything about it.

Q Have you counted over what you have got here?

A No, sir.
